2. RATIONALE

The ACGME-I requires that a Sponsoring Institution provide graduate medical education (GME) that facilitates residents' and fellows' professional, ethical, and personal development. The Sponsoring Institution and its GME programs, through curricula, evaluation, and resident/fellow supervision, must support safe and appropriate patient care. Further, the ACGME-I requires that an organized administrative system, led by a Designated Institutional Official (DIO) in collaboration with a Graduate Medical Education Committee (GMEC), must oversee all ACGME-I-accredited programs in the Sponsoring Institution. In addition, each ACGME-I accredited program must have a Program Evaluation Committee (PEC). The presence of a PEC serves to perform formal, systematic evaluations of the program and document this in the Annual Program Evaluation (APE) as part of the program's continuous improvement process in compliance with ACGME-I requirements.
